Prainhas - Called by the locals "As Prainhas" and known by tourists as "Praia da Escadaria", this beach owns one of the photos that most attracts tourists and publicizes Arraial do Cabo. Really from the top of the hill it is difficult not to be mesmerized by the paradisiacal landscape, colorful sea, and very fine and white sand. Access is by boat, which leaves from Praia dos Anjos or by car, going up Morro do Pontal do Atalaia. In high season access by land is limited to a maximum number of vehicles. (The Tour has a stop)

Praia do Forno - Of all the beaches in Arraial, Praia do Forno is the one with the least cold water. It has approximately 500 meters and is among the 5 most beautiful in Brazil. You can access it by boat or a very steep trail of a maximum of 20 minutes, which is worth every minute of effort. Elderly people, or those with children, should choose boat access. (The Tour has a stop)

Gruta Azul - Facing the high seas, accessed only by boat, with an opening of 3 meters and 15 meters high, the Gruta Azul is undoubtedly one of the greatest attractions of the nautical tour. It can only really be seen in shades of blue at very specific times and periods of the year, when the sun invades the cave, and the reflection of the water transforms the colors of the stone wall.

Ilha do Farol - Classified by the National Institute for Space Research as one of the most perfect beaches in the country, following criteria of water purity, sand quality and landscape. We only have access by boat, the number of visitors and the staying period is strictly controlled by the Navy, which can cause queues, especially in the high season or long holidays. (The Tour stops at Praia do Forno)

Fenda de Nossa Senhora - Arraial do Cabo keeps an image of Our Lady in the sea. According to residents, the image was found by a fisherman in a cave, being taken to the Church, having disappeared and reappeared in the cave a few times, until a replica was definitely placed in the crevice between rocks, on the way to the Blue Grotto.

- NOTE: Every nautical tour is subject to the authority of the Port Authority (Navy), which may prohibit the departure of boats without prior notice, when weather conditions, especially winds, jeopardize the navigability and safety of passengers and crew.
- With the arrival of summer, Arraial receives many more visitors than the structure of the city can accommodate. Traffic jams, queues, waits are normal and predictable at this time of year. Passengers who can, should avoid visiting Arraial on weekends and especially on holidays.
